

Lectures, Presentations and Educational Workshops in Further Education Colleges and Higher Education Institutes

Our Educational sessions can be carried out in any Further Education College or Higher Education Institute across England and Wales. They aim to engage learning around gender diversity and trans inclusion. We tailor lectures, presentations and workshops to particular courses, such as PGCE, sociology, psychology, journalism, nursing and applied theatre among others. In addition these educational sessions can contribute to 'enrichment' or 'diversity' events, LGBT History Month events and Student Union activities.

About Gendered Intelligence

Gendered Intelligence consists of a team of skilled trainers, facilitators, youth workers and qualified teachers. Some of the team hold doctorates in the area of transgender studies and/or have a lived experience of being trans. We have a working and in-depth knowledge of the wider trans community and of the young trans community in particular. Gendered Intelligence is a registered Community Interest Company. The company is Limited by Guarantee under Companies House regulation, and is not for profit. For more information about us visit our website.

Gendered Intelligence provides a non-judgmental service that supports all educational settings to develop and improve their trans inclusion and gender diversity good practices.

Contact us to find out more:

E mail: education@genderedintelligence.co.uk

Telephone: 0207 832 5848

Website: genderedintelligence.co.uk

Office address: VAI, 200a Pentonville Road, London N1 9JP

Company number: 06617608

We always aim to work flexibly and to meet your needs in your particular setting. Please do contact us to discuss alternatives. All our services can be mixed and matched to suit your specific needs and circumstances, or bespoke as required.

Lectures, Presentations and Educational Workshops in Further Education Colleges and Higher Education Institutes are useful in one or more of the following circumstances:

- The institute's ethos is committed to equality and inclusion, and would benefit from an increased understanding of gender diversity and what it means to include trans people
- The institute wishes to prepare students for the opportunities, responsibilities and experience of later life and living in a diverse world

At the end of the session students will show an increase in their ability to:

- Recognise and value diversity and prepare students for the world of work
- Respect difference and our responsibility to others in particular within our future roles as professionals
- Assertively challenge prejudice and discrimination
- Understand gender as diverse and the impact of gender stereotyping

Duration: 1-3hrs

Cost: £145 per hour (plus travel expenses)

Numbers: Up to 100 students

See 'Gendered Intelligence Fees, Terms & Conditions'

"The session allowed me to engage with the academic understanding of trans and trans studies, providing me with exemplary examples of trans and gender inclusive theatre and arts practice. Additionally the workshop has benefitted my own educational practice. Some key exercises have directly influenced my own workshops and planning when facilitating"
Student, Royal Central School of Speech and Drama, University of London

You may also be interested in

- Mentoring for Trans Students in Further Education Colleges and Higher Education Institutes
- Training and Presentations for Staff Working in Education
- Professional Consultancy
- Public events - presentations, conferences, panel discussions, lectures and workshops
- Stalls